SF Net is an exciting new on-line service connecting people in San Francisco's Cafes and Coffee Bars with people from all over the Bay Area. Cafe frequenters plug into the network by using special tables featuring a computer and modem. Those connecting from home simply use their personal computers/modems to call the network.

Here's what the press has to say:

"From the Lower Haight to South of Market, high-tech trendies are interfacing over cappuccino." -NEWSWEEK

"Now it's espresso and conversation via computers." -John Flinn, SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

"I had the best time. It was more fun! You really got into it." -Ann Fraser, KPIX TV

"The latest trend in coffee houses here is a computer network that lets espresso drinkers interface all over the Bay Area." -Elizabeth Snead, USA TODAY

"Suitors can find like-minded friends somewhere in the computer without having to chat them up face to face." -The ECONOMIST

"The system promotes interaction...especially when users meet in person." -Linda Joyce, CNN (Cable News Network)

"Some of SF's hippest coffee houses have replaced eye contact as a means of communication." -Dory Culver, KCBS RADIO

"In SF cafe regulars are now hanging out with friends throughout the City at the same time thanks to SF Net." -Deborah Clark, KQED RADIO
